Now With F.M.L.

FILCHED .....

Hundreds of scientists completed a computer with a master brain -- a brain with the intellect to answer all questions and solve all mysteries of the world. The world waited as the machine was fed the big question.

With trembling hands, one of the scientists fed the query into the computer: "How did the world start?"

Lights flashed, wheels whirred, tumbler clicked. Then the machine answered on the card: "See Genesis."

--Texas Outlook

NOW-NOW-NOW

This tells a side of the computer story that people have yet to understand fully. Only what men already know can be put into a computer to get out the answers.

As a computerman puts, "the computer will only do what we tell it to."

If a computer can't arrive at an answer, it is only because its programmer or designer couldn't build in the facility to solve it.

The largest, most effective computer yet is the human mind. Its ability to store information, conscious or subconscious, is enormous and only now becoming a matter of measureable quantity. There are unremembered responses and experiences stored in the human mind that may never surface in conscious thought or may never appear to influence our thought process or physical function. But subliminally, the unremembered, but recorded are there.

Each life, each generation adds somehow, some iota to this experience, probably affecting mental capacity and in long, long terms heredity itself.

That's another thing computers can't do either, reproduce themselves. We understand they can be programmed to repair another and specifically to back up another computer on line.

The human mind theorizes. The computer adds and subtracts.

LUSH grapefruit, oranges and lemons, usually considered a product of the Texas Valley have proven a fascinating hobby for the Pete Miller family of Cameron. Mrs. Miller shows extra large grapefruit grown in the 15' x 18' greenhouse. The two-year old grapefruit tree and an orange tree of the same age each produced four fruit. A lemon tree, tangerine tree and tomato plants share space in the greenhouse.

Area Banks Show Gains

Contributing to a sharp statewide rise in deposits which brought Texas figures to a record peak, Central Texas banks stepped ahead with a large increase in deposits for the last quarter of 1972.

The reports were in response to a state and national call for statements of condition.

Partly a result of year-end totals, which generally run higher, the increase was also attributed to growth in industry and population, added to normal growth rate.

The sharpness of the rise was somewhat unexpected since deposits have been mounting for almost all the quarterly reports for years.

That records were set was not surprising, since year-end totals always are higher, yet the size of the inrease could be considered by some as outstanding.

Gin Charged With Air Pollution

BELTON

Charges of permitting cotton burrs or hulls to burn without a variance from the Texas Air Control Board were filed Wednesday against Roy Goan of Pendelton. The charges were filed by the County Health Department with Justice of the Peace Joe Harrison in Temple. The charges stated that cotton burrs were burning at the gin on Dec. 28. The health department went before Bell County Commissioners Tuesday and a resolution was passed by the court to allow the health department to file charges for air pollution.

New Candle Plant In Operation

GEORGETOWN

Old Georgetown Candles are now being manufactured in a new 40x100 foot all steel, windowless, air conditioned building located just beyond the south city limits of Georgetown, adjacent to and on the east side of IS 35. Presently the company ships out 1000 pounds of processed candles daily, including 400 dozen tapers, all hand dipped, a large quantity of molded decorative candles and many souvenir candles, such as a figure of Texas.

Nixon Picks Calvert Native

HEARNE

President Nixon has nominated Duke Law School dean and a native of Calvert Joseph Tyree Sneed as deputy attorney general of the United States, probably placing him in line for the attorney general's position should Richard G. Kleindienst leave the cabinet. The son of Harold Marvin Sneed and Cara Weber Sneed, longtime prominent citizens of Calvert, Sneed graduated from Calvert High School. He is married and has three children.

New Bank Seeks Charter

SNOOK

An application for a charter for a new state bank at Snook was filed with the Texas Banking Commission approval. Distance to the nearest bank, increased population and increased community interest were the major factors contributing to the making of the application.

Banner Building Year Seen

LAMPASAS

Lampasas has recorded a banner building year for new homes with city building permits issued for 67 units at a total cost of $1,347,900. The total dollar amount of permits on homes is up almost three times over last year. Commercial construction is down considerably from last year.

Teaff To Speak To Cougars

ROSEBUD

Speaker for the annual football banquet for the Rosebud-Lott Cougars will be Coach Grant Teaff, Baylor University coach, who was named as this past year's Southwest Conference Coach of the Year. The banquet will be held January 11 at 7 p.m. at Rosebud's St. Ann Catholic Center.

Weather Knocks Out Phones

ROCKDALE

Rainy weather knocked out approximately 150 telephones in Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s Rockdale exchange shortly after noon Monday, New Year's Day, and moisture in cables also interrupted telephone service to both Alcoa's Rockdale Works and Industrial Generating Co. A phone spokesman said all phones in Rockdale were back in service by 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Harper Sees Bright Future For Aluminum

Alcoa, the world's largest aluminum producer, predicts that the strong recovery of the nation's economy will spur the United States aluminum industry to expanded markets and an all-time shipment record in 1973.

The Pittsburgh, Pa. based company operates its biggest domestic refinery and smelter in Point Comfort and Rockdale respectively.

In a year-end commentary, Alcoa chief executive officer John D. Harper said the industry's long-distressed product prices are improving and higher price levels are anticipated as the new year progresses. Sheet and plate mills are operating at their highest rate in 10 years and order loads and lead times are being extended on products from other fabricating facilities, Harper said.

The domestic industry's voluntary curtailment of excess primary capacity has brought ingot production virtually into balance with demand. Inventories are being sharply lowered and U. S. smelters, which operated at 84 percent of rated capacity in 1971, gradually increased output to a 93 percent level by the end of the final quarter of 1972.

Harper, first plant manager of the 20-year-old Rockdale Works, said this industry level could be expected to increase somewhat during 1973.

He indicated total 1972 shipments of ingot and mill products will represent a record 12 to 14 percent increase over 1971 totals. He also predicted a further substantial shipment gain over this new, higher base.

U. S. and overseas markets for fabricated products closed the year on a strong note and continue to improve. Buildings and construction, with an indicated nine to 10 percent volume increase over 1971, again was the industry's largest market. In size, this market was followed by transportation, packaging and containers, electrical uses, consumer durable goods and machinery and equipment.

Local Clubs Announce Support For Symphony

The Cameron History Club Friday contributed $25 as the first group symphony patron for the return engagement of the Dallas Symphony here Tuesday, January 16.

Cameron Delphian Club also has announced support for the symphony's afternoon and evening performance at Cameron National Guard Armory.

Symphony committees of the Cameron Chamber continue to work on pre-concert efforts.

Committees include:

General arrangements--Rev. Alvis Coleman and Jim Woodum.

Program committee--John B. Henderson, Jr., and Robert Ellett.

Symphony set-up committee--Dana Kestenbaum and Frank Luecke.

Audience set-up committee--Jim Bledsoe and L. W. Stroup.

Refreshments--Mrs. Perry Holder and Miss Mildred Thornton.

Finance--Don G. Humble, William Kelm and Frank Luecke.

Tickets are available at Cameron Chamber of Commerce offices, Rockdale State Bank in Rockdale and Cultural Activities Center in Temple. Reserved seats are $3 each.

An afternoon student concert is scheduled for area schools Rockdale, Rosebud, Rogers, Buckholts, Milano and host-city Cameron. The $1 seats are available only through public schools and in group lots, such as school bands or student contingents.

The student concert begins at 1:30 p.m. January 16 and will be completed in about one hour, allowing school buses ample time to return to schools in the area, according to Luecke, Chamber Symphony committee chairman.

Confirmations for the student concert have been made by the Rogers High School band and the Rosebud-Lott High School band.

The student performance will include works by Mendelssohn, Berlioz, Tchaikovsky, Rimskey-Korsakov, Leonard Bernstein and Leroy Anderson.

The evening performance will be about one hour and 20 minutes and include works by Berlioz, Strauss, Mendelssohn and Stravinsky.

Cultural Activities Center of Temple and the Cameron Chamber are co-sponsors of the evening performance.

Watershed Election

The Elm Creek Watershed Authority will hold an election from 8 a.m. to 7p.m. Tuesday, January 9 at the Red Ranger Store located at the intersection of FM Road 437 and 940.

Incumbent directors are Robert Hoelscher, Frank Kratochvil, Robert Dana, and Reuben Mikeska.

Costs Will Determine Next Steps In Space

By Peter Mosley
Reuter Correspondent

HOUSTON

Man's next steps into outer space will almost certainly be an international affair, to judge by the financial and philosophical climate within the National Aeronautics and Space Agency (NASA) at the end of the Apollo project.

The enormous cost of national endeavors such as the man-on-the-moon program are already making them as obsolete as colonialism or gunboat diplomacy. NASA officially puts the cost of Apollo at $25 billion

But there are many who say that concealed costs would bump this figure by at least another billion dollars. Despite the major publicity campaign by NASA over its upcoming Skylab and shuttle space programs, the outlook for U.S. manned space flight on anything like the scale of Apollo is bleak indeed.

Skylab, due to be launched next spring -- but presently behind schedule -- is a cluster of linked units making up the biggest spacecraft the U.S. has ever flown. Three-man crews will operate it in earth orbit for periods of 28 days and then two periods of 56 days, conducting a range of scientific experiments.

But those who remember the more grandiose days of the space agency recall that Skylab was originally called "The Apollo Applications Program" and was merely intended as a sort of flying test-bed for a huge space station to be launched later in the decade.

Plans called for the space station to house 60 men and women in luxury, perhaps with a built-in gravity system. Preliminary designs were made -- one of them looking like the great "Space Wheel" that was featured in the film "2001 - A SpaceOdyssey."

Then, as the Apollo costs came under increasing fire in Congress, NASA began to modify the space station concept. It favored a modular or bit-by-bit approach, adding new sections to a fairly modest nucleus as money permitted. Finally, the whole thing was effectively shelved.

NASA added a few more experiments to Skylab and began calling it the first space station. In fact, far from being a totally new development, Skylab will be using much Apollo hardware. The main crew section, called the workshop, is fashioned from the third stage of the Saturn-V launch rocket, and the crews will use Apollo command and service modules to travel to and from the Skylab.

Much of the science conducted on Skylab will be directed towards assessing the effects of long-term space flight on the human-body -- still a little understood aspect, fraught with possible dangers.

Such knowledge will be essential if man ever undertakes true interplanetary exploration, such as a trip to Mars. But the knowledge will be of academic value only for many years to come, unless there is a radical re-thinking of the U.S. role in space.

NASA already has the funds for Skylab. The spacecraft and rockets -- one for the equipment, to be launched unmanned on April 30, another for the crew who will join it next day -- are already at Cape Kennedy waiting to move out to the launch pads.

Its biggest worry is the funds for the shuttle, a re-usable "space plane" due to become operational at the end of the decade. The space agency has fully committed itself to this project, and so has President Nixon.

But space funds are voted by Congress on a year-by-year basis. So althougn design and construction contracts have been awarded (North American, which built most of Apollo, again have the biggest share) the shuttle could still be shot down, or at least badly winged, by the same cost-conscious, down-to-earth senators who did so much to trip the Apollo program from its original 20 mission concept.

Blood Donors Needed To Meet 73-Unit Quota

A reminder is issued to all donors and prospective doners that the Central Texas Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Cameron Wednesday from 12 noon to 6 p.m. at the Methodist Fellowship Hall.

The city's quota is 73 units.

Blood program officials stated that blood supplies are low following the Christmas and New Year's holidays, and it is hoped Cameron can top its quota at this visit.

A Good Year...

Milam rainfall during 1972 was 33.16 inches, about normal for a year in this part of Texas.

December, 1972, rainfall was only .87 of an inch, well below most of the previous Decembers since 1960. But it was enough to keep things damp.

Considering the $21 million plus for Milam agriculture and livestock, it was good that normal rainfall was our lot.

The drought years of the early and mid-60s were hard on everyone, even as cotton prices fell in 1966 and the county went more and more grazing and diversified farming. Next year, Cameron will have no cotton gin for the first time in anyone's memory.

The normal rains helped make it a good year.

Healthier Than Most...

Standard Rate & Data Service lists a Milam increase in personal income (after taxes) by an incredible 58 percent during the five-year period 1967-72.

Figures for Milam County in 1967 at $37,689,00 and in 1972 at $59,705,000. The national average gain during the same period was 48 percent.

Inflation has a lot to do with these figures, not everything by any means, particularly in Milam County. Increased payroll at Alcoa in numbers (with expansion), higher wages and more under minimum wage plus evident better profitability for the surviving businesses totaled the rest of the increase.

Household spending in Milam County went from $4,059 in 1966 to $4,477 last year.

Retail sales increased about 10 percent during the five year period -- from $28.4 million to $30.8 millions.

All of which says this county is agri-business and industrial and healthier than most.

Mongolia's Present Leader Not Like Genghis Khan

By James Pringle
Reuter Correspondent

MONGOLIA

Mongolia's present leader, Yumjagiin Tsedenbal, has little in common with the Mongol warrior kings, Genghis Khan and Tamerlane, who in the 13th and 14th centuries carved their names in history by cruel conquests of most of the then known world.

By contrast, perhaps because of his country's remoteness, the sparsity of its 1,250,000 population or his-tongue-twisting name, Mr. Tsedenbal is little known outside the Soviet bloc, though he was recently in the Caribbean visiting Cuba.

There is also no visible evidence of a cult of personality in his own vast country, lying between the two mutually hostile communist giants, Russia and China.

Yet, the 56 year old bespectacled economist, as first secretary of the ruling peoples revolutionary Party (P.R.P.), is one of the more durable of the worlds national leaders, having held supreme office for most of the past 20 years.

And diplomats here, using a metaphor especially apt in a country were many people still ride on horseback, say Tsedenbal is still firmly in the saddle, having survived some tough political infighting in the late 1950s and early 60s.

These envoys describe him as "a rather straight, agreeable man to meet, very talkative and jolly, devoted to the Soviet Union and very aware of the problems of his own country."

They say the political climate here is relaxed, despite Mongolia is being a one-party state since the communists came to power in 1921, and the resemblance the PRP newspaper "Unen" ("Truth") bears to "Pravda" - even down to the cyrillic script introduced here in 1941.

In Ulan Bator, the capital and only large city, a midnight knock on the door means no more than a friend dropping round with a bottle of arkhe, the potent local liquor.

Though socialist realism is in official favor in artistic endeavour, people here can spend an evening at the theatre watching a Mongol language version of "Othell," the favorite Shakespearean play in Mongolia.

And a Russian exhibition of photographs marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the U.S.S.R. contains some surprisingly risque shots of girls.

As in other Moscow-lining communist states, a new class has emerged - the sons and daughters of high party officials may dance to the "Rolling Stones" and sip imported scotch whisky in dacha parties held in the snow-covered hills overlooking Ulan Bator.

But this climate of relaxation - so different from the rigid political orthodoxy in China to the south - has also reached the man in the street, or the herdsman in the Gobi and on the steppelands.

Salaries are good, and the shops well-stocked with goods from Soviet Union and East Europe - from Bulgarian jam to East German Radios. Vegetables are available in the depth of the freezing Mongolian winter.

As a political operator, Tsedenbal believes he knows on which side Mongolia's bread is buttered - and that is on the side facing the Soviet Union, Mongolia's northern neighbor.

Moscow for its part wants to retain a firm friend in the buffer state between the Soviet Union and China.

No objection has been made to Tsedenbal's "consumer" communism - about two million of the 25 million livestock in the country are in private hands, for instance.

Home Insurance Cost Cut

By Bill Boykin

The State Board of Insurance had good news for homeowners as the new year turned.

Insurance rate cuts which will total an estimated $25 million a year in savings for coverage on dwellings were ordered effective January 1.

Gov. Preston Smith commended the Board and claimed that debate on insurance rating issues during the special legislative session he called last fall figured in the reductions.

Board members first announced these reductions for extended coverage and homeowners' package policies:

North - northwest territory--30 per cent for extended coverage and 20 per cent homeowners' policies.

Central inland area--eight per cent and seven per cent.

Seacoast "second tier" counties--18 per cent and 10 per cent less.

Announcement of the first reductions were followed three days later by fire rate cuts for dwellings.

The statewide fire rate slashes amount to 12 per cent for brick veneer, asbestos and stucco houses and nene per cent for frame dwellings. A three per cent increase was directed for all brick dwellings, but the Board noted this category accounts for only two per cent of Texas housing.

BUDGET REFORM URGED

Legislators returning to work in regular session Tuesday found five budget reform proposals designed to save at least $50 million a year.

Texas Manufacturers Association unveiled the recommendations and announced a statewide campaign to win support for them.

These proposals are expected to introduced by prominent legislators, TMA said.

* Authority for the governor, as chief state executive officer, to review state spending on a quarterly basis.

* Authority for the legislative budget board to conduct biennial performance audits of agency and program operational efficiency.

Limiting compromise powers of free conference committees on appropriations, rather than permitting addition of new items or deletion of others previously agreed on by both houses.

* Establishing a "price-tagging" system, under which the legislative budget board must project cost estimates for a five-year period on all spending legislation before committee hearings.

* Creating a two-year study by a 15-member gubernatorial commission of the practice of earmarking 80 per cent of total state revenues, free of direct legislative control.

AG OPINIONS

A San Antonio school teacher is ineligible to serve as a member of the State Board of Education, the attorney general concluded:

County commissioners must be petitioned by one per cent of county voters before they can call a countywide road bond election.

An advertising scheme whereby merchants award prizes by drawings and punchcards is a lottery in violation of the law.

A requirement of persons applying for a marriage license appearing together or separately before the county clerk may be waived, and ceremonial marriages may be performed by proxy where there is a valid marriage license issued.

Refinery units constructed on land owned by gas companies are determined to be real property.

A vehicle designed primarily for application of fertilizer and herbicides is an "implement of husbandry" (used for agricultural purposes) and is not required to be registered for highway usage.

Governor Smith designated V. Larry Teaver Jr. of Austin, a longtime friend and aide, as secretary of state to serve until January 16 when Gov. Dolph Briscoe takes office. Teaver succeeds Bob Bullock who resigned after January 1.

Other Smith appointments include: Judge Edward D. Coulson of Houston as associate justice of the 14th court of civil appeals; Sam Lane of Austin to Texas Employment Commission; Bob Lilly of San Antonio as chairman of Texas Animal Health Commission; David McAngus of Austin as 201st district judge; Judge Jackson B. Smith Jr. of Houston as 189th district judge; Mrs. Ruby Kless Sondock of Houston to domestic relations court no. 5 in Harris County; Murray L. McWorter (reappointed) to the Veterans Land Board; and Bill Tippen of Abilene and Richard C. Ingram of Dallas to the Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education.

Brad O'Leary of Austin was designated executive director of the Texas Republican Party and Harrison Vickers of Houston executive director of the State Democratic Party.

SHORT SNORTS

The new Homer Garrison Jr. Law Enforcement Academy of the Texas Department of Public Safety, named for the late DPS director from 1938-1968, was officially dedicated here January 4 and hailed among the best equipped in the United States.

Gross agricultural income for Texas during 1972 may exceed $4 billion, according to Agriculture Commissioner, John C. White.

Court of Criminal Appeals declared unconstitutional a law (since amended) providing that 17 year old males could be tried for felonies, while females must be 18 to face trial.

Revenue from cigarette taxes dropped $2.5 million--to $17.4 million--from December 1971 to last month.

Animal Health Commission announced quarantines in portions of Nueces and Webb counties for fever tick infestation and exposure.

Governor Smith said state government will have a $300 million "nestegg" of unexpended fund balances when he leaves office.

Texas Education Agency received a national leadership award for developing performance-based teacher education programs.

Rep. Frances (Sissy) Farenthold, unsucessful candidate for governor last year, announced she will maintain a permanent Austin office and monitor the legislature.

Science Verifies

Science has learned that when the drug alcohol is consumed, it is quickly absorbed by the blood vessels of the stomach and intestines and carried by the blood to all parts of the body, including the brain. It acts as an anesthetic on the brain, and the more one drinks, the stronger the effect. The Central Texas Safety Action Project suggests that anesthetics have their proper place, but NOT on the highway.

Swiss Fighting To Keep Cavalry

By Adrienne Farrell

BERNE

Horse-lovers are fighting a rearguard action in a desperate attempt to save the Swiss cavalry, condemned to be replaced by tanks before the end of 1973.

Both houses of Parliament have voted, after much wavering, to abolish the dragoons, Europe's last active cavalry force. But a surge of popular sentiment could yet reverse the decision.

Cavalry supporters have begun to collect the 50,000 signatures needed to bring about a popular referendum on the subject. Since 432,000 people earlier signed a petition to parliament in favor of the cavalry, there will proably be no difficulty in obtaining support for such a referendum.

And if a referendum is held, strong sentiment in favor of the colorful and traditional mounted troops could win the day over the demand for rationalization and mechanization.

The fate of the Swiss cavalry has hung in the balance for more than a year since the cabinet proposed that the 3,500 dragoons be switched from horses to tanks.

At first the lower house of parliament voted to keep the mounted troops, while cutting their strength from 19 squadrons to 12. But then the upper house voted for complete abolition.

Under the Swiss constitution, wherever there is a divergence between the two houses of parliament, the issue must be reviewed until agreement is reached. In a fresh debate, the lower house fell into line with the upper and agreed to abolish the cavalry.

Swiss newspapers mourned. Front-page photographs featured a line of steel-helmeted Swiss horsemen winding slowly into the snowy distance--rather like pictures of Napoleons' retreat from Moscow.

The cavalrymen themselves were stunned but disciplined. "As dragoons and soldiers we accept this democratic decision with gritted teeth but standing to attention," said Col. Adolf Meier, president of the Swiss Cavalry Federation.

Sportsmen feared that the death of the cavalry would handicap Switzerland in international horse shows.

Most troopers were worried about the fate of their horses. South Africa has offered to buy all surplus saddles and harnesses, and any horse available, but the cavalrymen hope to keep their mounts as private individuals.

"We will fight to the end to keep our horses," said Jean-Marc Felix, secretary of the Geneva Cavalry Association.

The dragoons, in their grey-green uniforms, mean more to the Swiss than their military worth, which the government now believes outdated. They represent a centuries-old tradition of individual involvement in Switzerlands' defense which has its roots in the farms and villages and finds its fulfillment in the part-time Swiss army of today.

The government still buys and trains the cavalry horses and then sells them at half-price to tis civilian recruits to take home to the farm until they are called up each year for military training.

Electric heating. Sure cure for the shivers.

It's gentle, clean and quiet and it warms you deep down—like a sunny day. With electric home heating you can warm the chilly corners and do away with the icy drafts around your ankles. Whether you're remodeling, replacing an inadequate heating system or planning a new home, there's an electric heating system just right for you.

An electric furnace forces warm air wall to wall in winter. An electric heat pump does the heating job in the winter and also cools you in summer. Space heaters warm up the difficult spots. Baseboard heating eases even warmth across your floors and up to the ceiling. Radiant ceiling or wall panels are great for add-on rooms and allow you individual-room temperature control. Before another winter chills you, let a TP&L representative help you select the electric heating that's best for your home.

Write or call your TP&L Service Representative for a free computerized heating estimate. It will include size and type of heating equipment needed and will give a month-by-month estimate of your electricity bill.

Dallas Symphony Has Long History

The 1971-72 season marks the 72nd year of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra. In a city of relative youth, the Dallas orchestra has long been a dominant force in the cultural development of the Southwest.

The Symphony will hold a concert in Cameron January 16.

Founded in 1900, the Dallas Symphony was conducted for its first season by Hans Kreissig, a noted pedagogue and pianist. From 1905 to 1911, and again from 1918 to 1924, Walter Fried was on the Dallas podium. Carl Venth conducted from 1911 to 1924. For twelve years Dr. Paul VanKatwijk, then Dean of Music at Southern Methodist University, was musical director of the Orchestra, expanding its seasons and scope of programming from 1925 to 1938.

Jacques Singer came to the Dallas orchestra in 1938 from Philadelphis where he had been a protege of Leopold Stokowski. Singer held the Dallas post until 1942 when the orchestra began a three year sabbatical during the War.

In 1945 the Dallas Symphony was reorganized on a fully professional basis and enjoyed a meteoric rise to prominence among the major orchestras of this country. Antal Dorati, later to become conductor in Minneapolis, then the BBC in London and later in Stockholm, became musical director. Within six weeks of the first rehearsal of the new orchestra, the Dallas Symphony had signed a recording contract with RCA Victor records.

LONG HISTORY

From 1949 to 1958 the Symphony was conducted by Walter Hendl, American musician who is now head of the Eastman School of Music. The internationally celebrated conductor, Paul Kletzki, assumed the Dallas podium upon Hendl'e departure for a post with the Chicago Symphony and was the Dallas musical director until 1961. The 1961-62 season was under the direction of Georg Solti, musical director of London's Royal Opera at Covent Garden.

From 1962 to 1970 the Dallas Symphony was conducted by the young American, Donald Johanos. Known for his adventuous programming and his ability to create beautiful symphonic sound, Johanos was a frequent guest conductor of the outstanding orchestras of this country, South America and Europe and is now Associate Conductor with William Steinberg of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Heading the Orchestra in the current season is Anshel Brusilow, former conductor of the Chamber Symphony of Philadelphia, and for many years concert master of the Phildelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy. Working with Maestro Brusilow is Associate Conductor Earl Bernard Murray.

Piano Duo Next For Baylor Series

WACO

German duo pianists Alfons and Aloys Kontarsky, the third attraction of this season's Distinguished Artist Series at the Baylor School of Music, will perform at 8:15 p.m. Jan 23 in Roxy Grove Hall on the Baylor campus.

Concert tickets, on sale at the Baylor School of Music, are priced at $1.50 for students and $2.50 for adults.

Ticket requests may be made by calling the office at (817) 755-1161 or by writing School of Music, Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

The Kontarsky brothers established their reputation in Europe through two areas of artistic accomplishment: their brilliant piano-playing on two pianos and their interpretation of contemporary music.

Since 1958, they have traveled many times throughout all of the European countries and have concertized in the Near East, Japan, South and Central America. They came to North America for the first time during the 1966-67 concert season.

Today, the Kontarskys are recognized in Europe as the foremost duo pianists of our time. The London Times wrote in 1962 that they are the "most accomplished team of piano duettists now before the public."

Claude Rostand, writing in Le Figaro, said "it has been a long time since we have heard duo pianists of such exceptional quality."

Couple Wed In Shreveport, La.

The wedding of Miss Kathleen Adele Marak of Shreveport, La., and James Allen Hightower of Baton Rouge was soleminzed at 6 p.m. December 16 in St. John Berchmans Catholic Church, Shreveport.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Marak of Shreveport and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John A. Marak Sr. who were long time residents of Marakville. Mr. Hightower is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Allen Hightower of South Pasadena, California.

MRS. JAMES ALLEN HIGHTOWER
...former Miss Kathleen Adele Marak

Pearls and sequins embellished the bodice of the bride's white organza gown. Wide panels of Chantilly lace adorned the Watteau train, which accented the formal gown. She wore a mantilla of matching Chantilly lace and held a bouquet of white blossoms.

Mrs. John D. Scott III attended her sister as matron of honor and the bridesmaids were another sister, Miss Donna Joan Marak; Miss Jeanne Karam and Mrs. Ray Trogolo. Each wore a formal empire gown of emerald green velvet and carried white bouquets.

Shanon C. Clark and Donald Leonard Clark III, both of Dallas, were flower girl and ring bearer.

The grooms father served as bestman. Groomsmen were his brother, Daniel Robert Hightower of South Pasadena, Calif., Mr. Scott of Natchitoches and William Irving Dickens of Wilson, N. C.

Ushers were the bride's brothers, Henry Martin Marak Jr. of Houston and Robert Joseph Marak.

The Women's Department Club was the setting for a reception.

Following a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn., the couple are making their home in New Roads, La.

ENGAGED - Dr. and Mrs. E. Douglas Perrin have announced the engagement of their daughter Patricia Kay to Mr. Randy James son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond James of Junction, Texas. The bride-elect is a 1969 graduate of Hamlin High School, Hamlin, Texas, and is a May candidate for graduation from the University of Texas at San Antonio with a B. S. degree in nursing. A 1967 graduate of Junction High School, the prospective bridegroom graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with a B. S. degree in Engineering Science in 1971. He is employed with Texas Instruments at Dallas. An August wedding is planned.

Winter Hardy Plants May Be Set Out Now

Winter hardy plants can be planted in most of Texas during late fall and winter so as to develop a good root system by next summer.

In areas where the soil may freeze, it's important to water plants, especially evergreens. Drying winds and cold can quickly dehydrate evergreen plants, causing leaf burn or even death

Personal Mention

Guests in the home of their mother, Mrs. O. B. Horstmann, during the holiday season were her children: Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Spilman and son Mark of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Lane Horstmann and children Lane, Jr., Leland and Larinda, of Spring Branch; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boldt and sons Mark and Kent of Houston and New Braunfels and Edward of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Mrs. C. G. Swift is a patient at St. Edward Hospital following an accident last weekend.

Ex-Teachers Meet Here

Milam County's Retired Teachers will have their January meeting at 3 p.m. Monday (today) at the Cameron Community Center.

H. D. Maxwell, president, said all retired teachers were invited to attend.

Breakfast Fetes Guest

Miss Modine Gregory was hostess for a farewell breakfast at her home Thursday morning honoring Miss Dorothy M. Johnson of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Miss Johnson, a teacher in the Jaminez Springs school district, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Johnson for the past 15 days.

Blinn Sets Registration

BRENHAM

Registration for the spring semester at Blinn College in Brenham will be held in the Academic Building from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on January 9 through 12, and on Monday, January 15. Classes begin on Tuesday, January 16.

Commuters and dormitory students may register on any of the registration days. Dormitories will officially open for the spring semester at 2 p.m. on Sunday, January 14.

Students registering late must make up the work missed within two weeks after the normal registration period as well as pay a $5 late registration fee. Absences will be counted against students registering late.

Texas Blue Crab A Favorite

AUSTIN

Hungry Texans who find crabs just too formidable an opponent to tangle with will be pleased to learn that the Texas blue crab is marketed in several genteel forms.

Consumers may buy crab in lump meat, specia' meat, claw meat or claw fingers, according to Cindy Gray, seafood home economist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Lump" meat is white chunks taken from the body cavities and is great for salads and crab cocktails, according to Ms. Gray.

"Special" meat is white flaked meat from various parts of the crab and is suited for dips and casseroles.

"Claw" meat is dark in color and very tasty and can be used like special meat.

And "claw fingers" are perfect for cocktail use. They consist of the finger of the claw with the shell of the finger still attached.

Here is a great recipe which will help Texans get better acquainted with these un-crabby market forms. Other seafood recipes are available from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. John H. Reagan Building, Austin 78701.

EASY CRAB CASSEROLE

1 pound crab meat
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup cooked peas
Dash pepper
1/2 cup grated cheese
Paprika
Salt to taste

Remove any shell or cartilage from crab meat. Combine soup, peas, pepper and crab meat. Place in six well - greased, individual shells or five-oz. custard cups. Sprinkle cheese and paprika over top of crab mixture. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 20 to 25 minutes or until brown. Serves six.

Poage Raps Secretary For Rural Interest Hike

WASHINGTON

The Administration's announcement that minimum loan rates on rural electric and telephone loans will be more than doubled drew fire today from a Congressional leader who said the action is being done through misuse of a newly enacted law.

Chairman W. R. (Bob) Poage, D-Tex., of the House Committee on Agriculture, called the action the latest in a series of "underhanded" methods of dealing with farm problems affecting farmers and Rural America. He noted that in passing the Rural Development Act of 1972 it was never thought that its provisions would be construed as legal basis for boosting REA loan rates.

For decades the Rural Electrification Administration has made two percent loans available in some circumstances to both REA cooperatives and privately owned utilities. The Department of Agriculture announced December 29 this rate would be raised to five percent, notwithstanding the fact that Congress appropriated $488 million in new funds for two percent loans for electric power systems in the current fiscal year $145 million for electric power syslion for telephone systems, and made available an additional $107 million of unobligated funds for the power systems.

Chairman Poage's statement follows:

"The Congress has authorized this program for many years because it is far more costly to provide electric service in rural areas where the number of consumers is only about three per mile than it is to provide it in urban areas where the average number of consumers is between thirty and forty per mile.

"The interest on capital investment accounts for almost a third of the cost of electric service for our rural systems. The costs of power and of operation are of course comparable to those of the urban electric systems. In fact in most cases power costs the REA cooperatives more because they cannot buy it in as large blocks as the urban systems.

"To increase the cost of capital by 250 percent (raising the interest on loans from two to five percent) will of course impose a terrible burden on the rural cooperatives -- a burden which must be passed on to the consumers. This will be but another in the series of blows directed against the living standards of our rural people this week.

"First it was announced that the Administration was destroying the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), which has done so much to enhance our open-air recreation, to protect our streams and lakes from siltation, and to reforest our denuded lands, all with farmer cooperation.

"Next the Administration wiped out the emergency loan program in disaster areas. Along with this the Water Bank Program was eliminated. And then the Rural Electric and Rural Telephone loan rate was increased by 250 percent.

"All of this is bound to adversely affect the quality of rural living (at a time when we should be encouraging city dwellers to return to the rural areas and smaller towns) and all of this was done in spite of the fact that the Congress had provided specific authority and specific funds for these programs.

"The crowning insult was the statement in the announcement of the Department of Agriculture that 'this action was made possible by the enactment of the Rural Development Act of 1972.'

"Congress passed the Rural Development Act for the purpose of supplementing, not reducing, the programs available to rural people. The same Congress which passed this Rural Development Act appropriated $740 million for the specific purpose of making two percent loans to REA borrowers, and President Nixon signed the bill. To me this is an underhanded method of dealing with these problems."

Weekly Market Report

Create a holiday centerpiece of nature's bounty-using colorful fruits and vegetables.

This suggestion from a Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, specialist.

Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist, named fruits and vegetables for the centerpiece, along with the week's economical food buys.

"Oranges, tangerines, tangelos, grapefruit, apples, grapes, bananas, cranberries, pineapple and avocados are priced the same or lower than last week," she reported.

Cabbage, celery, carrots, loose turnips, hard shell squash, potatoes, dry yellow onions, sweet potatoes and broccoli are in good supply at economical prices.

"The beef market remains fairly quiet with no spectacular features," Mrs. Clyatt said. "However, occasionally arm, blade and English roasts may be mentioned in food ads. Other selections include Boston roll roast, chuck and round steak.

"Beef liver is another high protein attraction," she added.

Pork values appear on boneless hams, picnics, shoulder roast and steaks, end-cut roasts and chops, and pork liver.

"Ham prices have increased some in the past two weeks."

Attractive buys in turkeys feature birds from 10-23 pounds. In general, the larger the turkey, the meatier it is.

"There's a turkey for every family, whether large or small.

"Fryer chickens--whether whole or in parts--remain an excellent choice pricewise. Regular use of poultry products can keep most family food budgets within their boundaries," the specialist pointed out.

Egg supplies are ample for this season, with large size in greatest supply, she concluded.

LS Signs Large Gas Purchase Contract

DALLAS

Lone Star Gas Company has signed an agreement with Amoco Production Company to explore for gas reserves on some 225,000 West Texas leasehold acres owned by Amoco. From a study completed of adjoining areas and geological voring areas and and geological information, it is estimated that the area has potential which could exceed 500 billion cubic feet of gas.

Lone Star will advance funds to Amoco, as operator, to evaluate a gas producing sand called the Canyon San series which lies at varying depths between 3,000 and 8,000 feet. The acreage lies in Sutton, Schleicher, Crockett, Edwards, and Val Verde counties.

A portion of any production found will be applied against all funds advanced. In addition, all gas discovered by the drilling will be sold to Lone Star under a 20-year term gas purchase contract.

Initial drilling will begin in January and will extend over several years.

Fat Stock Show Deadline Nears

FORT WORTH

Deadline for entries in the pigeon, rabbit and poultry division of the 77th annual Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show is Jan. 15, reports W. R. Watt Jr., general manager.

This year's Stock Show is scheduled Jan. 26 through Feb. 4, with some Horse Show classes beginning Jan. 23.

"Our office staff is counting and posting entries for cattle, sheep, swine, and horses which closed earlier horses which closed earlier," Watt said. "From the estimates I've seen thus far, it appears this year's show will post a record number of entries."

The previous record of 11,241 entries was registered during the 1971 Southwestern Exposition.

Six Guardsmen Visit Germany

Six Central Texas Guardsmen returned to Texas Sunday night after a 17-day trip to Germany. The trip by these guardsmen was a part of a Troop Exchange Program with the Federal Republic German Army (FRGA).

The purpose of the exchange program was to provide the Army National Guard an opportunity to participate in training with the FRGA, to become familiar with the German people, to exchange thoughts and ideas, and to establish ties of friendship.

While in Germany the Guardsmen visited the German Airborne School at Schongau where they made five parachute jumps and were awarded their German jump wings. The guardsmen also visited the German Armored School, the German Signal School, and were guests for one week with the 100th Long Range Patrol Company. The Guardsmen visited the German training area at Verden and were observers of a German infantry-tank tactical Exercise, a two battalion tank battle and a river bridge crossing constructed by the German engineers. A tour of the East German border was made in the vicinity of Helmstedt and the American Check Point "Charlie."

While in Germany the Guardsmen toured points of interest in Frankfurt, Koblenz, Bonn, Kolon, Hannover, Brunschweig, Munich and the Olympic Games Complex, the Volkswagan plant at Wolfsburg and an area along the Baverian and Austrian Alps. Another highlight for the Texas Guardsmen was being guests on a radio and television show featuring German folk music.

The Central Texas Guardsmen making the trip are assigned to the 3d Bn (Abn) 143d Infantry with Headquarters in Waco. The guardsmen won the right to make the trip by being the outstanding recruiters in the 71st Airborne Brigade.

The six guardsmen making the trip from the Central Texas Area include CSM Arthur Allen, Marlin, MSG George Mitchell, Waco, SSG Archie L. McMillan and SP4 Eduardo Garza, Temple, SSG Jerry Odle, Clifton, and SP4 Harry Timmerman, Cameron.

New Farce Opening At Playhouse

"The Owl and the Pussycat" starring TV's Dawn Wells will be the next production at the Country Dinner Playhouse, opening Wednesday, January 10 (after a public preview on Tuesday, January 9.)

A merry farce-comedy about education that has nothing to do with a school, "The Owl and the Pussycat" was a triumphant success on Broadway, and more recently as a motion picture starring Barbra Streisand.

As the bouncing tale of a chance encounter between a young man who thinks he's a reserved "intellectual," and a shady lady who thinks she is dumb but actually knows everything not in the books, the comedy reflects tis title, presenting an owlishly wise young man struggling against the wiles of a kittenish young woman. Otherwise, however, it is unrelated to Edward Lear's famous nonsense poem which begins: "The Owl and the Pussycat went to sea, in a beautiful pea-green boat..."

The battling pair in the play indulge in a number of stormy interludes but definitely do not go to sea. All of the action takes place inside the owlish fellow's garret-like apartment in San Francisco. The poem's last lines, however, have some metaphorical relevance to the outcome of their story: "And, hand in hand, on the end of the sand, they danced by the light of the moon."

Dawn Wells (Doris), will portray the raffish gal who practices one of the oldest professions will best be remembered by Austin audiences as Mary Ann on the successful TV series "Gilligan's Island"... a part she played for 3 years.

ALAN SHEPARD'S Apollo space suit now on display at the Pate Museum on Highway 377 between Fort Worth and Cresson. It is the suit that he wore when he walked on the moon.

Museum Displays Apollo Space Suit

A space suit just exactly like those worn recently by the Astronauts on the Apollo 17 Flight to the Moon is on exhibit at the Pate Museum of Transportation located on Highway 377 between Fort Worth and Cresson.

It is the historic space suit that Commander Alan Shepard wore when he walked on the Moon during the Apollo 14 Flight in 1970. This is the space suit that was developed and perfected at a cost of $400,000. It is on loan to the Pate Museum from the National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C.

Admission is free to see the Space Suit and many other exiciting exhibits having to do with transportation on the ground, in the air and in outer space. The Museum is open every day, except Monday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

You may wonder why the Apollo Space Suit cost so much. The reason is that it is not merely a piece of protective space clothing, but a coordinated array of components to keep the lunar astronauts alive! It is called an "extra-vehicular mobility unit" (EMU) because it includes communications and life - support equipment in a self-contained package, worn as a pack strapped onto the back of the astronaut. This package is known as the "portable life-support system" (PLSS). The PLSS weighs 84 pounds (14 pounds on the moon) and costs $200,000.

Incorporated as a built-in part of the full-pressure suit is a thermal - meteoroid garment that shields the astronauts against solar heat. The gloves are built of an outer-shell of Chromel-R, a metallic fabric, and thermal insulation to protect a lunar astronaut's hands when he is handling extremely hot or cold objects. Silicone - rubber fingertips allow the gloves to give him more sensitivity to touch.

The lunar overshoes, unlike the gloves, are an integral part of the suit. Built in two sections they employ a variety of exotic materials for insulation. The inner section is made up of 13 layers of Teflon-coated aluminized Kapton plastic, which are separated by 12 spacing layers of Marquisetta, a glass - spun fabric soles but also employs at least of materials used in the EVA suit itself. The term "Beta," when applied to glass fibers, is a trademark of the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation.

Beta yarns are fireproof, and even when they are heated to their melting point of some 1,350 to 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit, they will not burn. These glass fibers are the finest textile filaments known to mankind. They are not only fire-roof but also have extraordinary insulation qualities.

To guard against flaking of the finely woven glass fibers in a vacuum, the Beta yarn used in the Apollo space suits is covered with a fluorocarbon substance known to housewives as Teflon.

Parrish Elected President

Tom Parrish, Waco, vice president of development for Baylor University, has been elected president of the Heart O'Texas Council, Boy Scouts of America.

At the annual business meeting of the Council, two youth members were appointed to the executive board as participating members. They are Cydney Stewart of Killeen, chairman of Explorer President Cabinet, and Tommy Vitek of Temple, lodge chief of the Order of the Arrow. The two received appointements as they are the current officers of the youth organizations sponsored by the Heart O' Texas Council.

Vice presidents elected were Homer Bower, Rockdale; L. D. Dorsey, Marlin; Lt. Gen. B. E. Powell, Killeen; and Afton Schulz, Temple. Treasurer elected is Don Zaggle of Waco.

WOOL WINNERS

Cathey Jo LaRoe of Happy, Tex. won first place, senior division, in the Make It Yourself With Wool competition at College Station. Junior division winner was Melissa Ann Coats of Goldwaithe. They will represent Texas at the national finals Jan. 23 in Washington, D.C.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

RELEASE: January 4, 1972

During this cold weather season, many of us will suffer the consequences of a cold, flu, or respiratory infection even though we may try to avoid or prevent it.

Since the chances are good to have a bout with the "cold bug" this year, it might behoove each of us to know more about what a cold is and what to do with it when you have it, say state health officials.

What is a cold? The common cold is a name given to any of a number of short-lived infections of the nose and throat. All of them are highly contagious. They have similar symptoms. Sometimes they are called by other names, which simply tell you what part of the upper respiratory tract is particularly affected: rhinitis, affecting the nose; pharyngitis, the throat; or laryngitis, the voice box.

What causes a cold? The Texas State Department of Health points out there are many different viruses which cause a cold. A virus is a disease-producing agent so small that it goes right through the very fine filter that stops bacteria. These cold-causing viruses are present in great numbers in your nose and throat when you have a cold. They are carried on the droplets you expel when talking, coughing, or sneezing.

How do you catch a cold? Though a virus causes your cold, a number of conditions seem to increase your susceptibility (science does not know why or how.) People appear to catch colds mainly indoors. They get more of them during the colder months. Fatigue, chilling, and poor physical condition seem to give the virus a better foothold.

What's the course of a cold? From one to three days after the virus takes hold in your body, the symptoms appear--one reason why colds are hard to prevent.) The first hint is usually scratchiness in the throat. Within a few hours, your nose gets stuffy and you have vague feelings of discomfort and illness. Usually you start sneezing, too.

Within 48 hours, your cold is in full bloom--eyes teary, nose running, voice husky, breathing obstructed, and your senses of taste and smell dulled. You may feel lethargic and achy. It's common to have a moderate headache, especially at the beginning (but a severe one may be a sign of some complication.) You may also have some fever, although that is unusual in adults.

Other--non-cold--viruses may complicate matters by getting in their licks when you are already felled by a cold. Or bacteria--many of which live in your body harmlessly during times of good health-- may grow strong when your defenses are down. Or sometimes your body is allergic to the cold virus or the activated bacteria.

Then the severity of the cold symptoms increases, and the inflammation and mucous discharge may spread to other parts of your respiratory system. For some people, these complications may be dangerous.

Can you cure a cold? No, you can't. There is no drug known today that can cure the common cold. Antibiotics, the " wonder drugs" are effective against bacteria, not against ordinary respiratory viruses. Doctors may prescribe these drugs for the complications, the secondary, bacterial infections, but not for the cold itself.

Bentson To Sponsor Bill To Protect News Sources

Senator Lloyd Bentsen announced today that he will sponsor legislation in the 93rd Congess to allow newsmen to protect their sources of information. "I firmly believe that a newsman should be able to offer his confidential sources of information the same protection a lawyer offers his clients or that a doctor offers his patients," the senator stated.

He cited the jailing of news reporters William T. Farr in Los Angeles and Peter J. Bridge in New Jersey as incidents that aroused his concern over the imperiled right of newsmen to pursue investigative reporting. The senator added that the Congress must take up the issue in the upcoming session in response to growing public concern over whether freedom of the press will continue to exist in this country.

"It would be difficult to overestimate the importance of a free press to our society, even though most of us, on occasion, take exception to some of the reporting that is done," the senator observed.

Senator Bentsen pointed out that both Farr and Bridge had been jailed by state judges relying on state laws, and that many of the other instances of confrontation between newsmen and public officials over the confidentiality of news sources had also involved state, rather than federal, laws.

But, he added, Congress must set the example by approving federal legislation that will encourage states to pass their own laws protecting newsmen's sources of information. Such legislation would serve to place the moral authority of Congress behind newsmen properly pursuing their journalistic roles. It would help to discourage the abuse of government power against the news media, he added.

Senator Bentsen noted that the issue had aroused sufficient concern in Congress to prompt various legislators to offer bills designed to aid newsmen.
